Versailles,<sup>1</sup> but which he only finished in 1762. In it he has shown himself beside his young wife and four children in a refined décor.

Jean-Marc Nattier, Jean-Marc Nattier and his Family, 1730-1762, oil on canvas, H. 1,43 m ; L. 1,63 m, Versailles, Musée National des Châteaux de Versailles et de Trianon.

The artist's wife

The portrait of his wife, Marie-Madeleine de La Roche is in the centre at the top. When they were married in 1724, she was only 16 years old, while Jean-Marc Nattier was 39. Marie-Madeleine was the daughter of Pierre de La Roche, a former musketeer of the king and of Marie-Anne Levasseur. The young wife “combined all there is of talent, beauty, youth and grace that can be seductive.”<sup>2</sup> She enjoyed adornment and happily dressed up in clothing made of silk, satin and printed cretonne. A musician, she played the harpsichord, as the family portrait in Versailles shows. If we are to believe Madame Tocqué, Nattier’s first biographer, they had nine children,<sup>3</sup> four of whom reached adulthood. Madame Nattier died in 1742.

The Eldest daughter: Marie-Catherine-Pauline Nattier (Madame Toqué)

The only one to be shown twice in this group, at the top right, and in the centre at the bottom, this is Marie-Catherine-Pauline Nattier, future Madame Toqué. Born on 27 July 1725, she is the couple’s first child. She married the portrait painter and pupil of her father, Louis Tocqué on 7 February 1747.

The inscription at the centre bottom of the mount is incorrect: this is not Madeleine-Sophie future Madame Challe. In 1898, the auction catalogue of the collection of the Comte Jacques de Bryas shows this confusion: “the family of the artist. Bust length portraits of Mrs. Nattier and her children: Mmes Tocqué, Brochier, Challe, Mlle Sophie and their brother. (...)." Moreover this effigy is directly connected to the one Marie-Catherine-Pauline in the family portrait at Versailles. As the eldest daughter shared her mother's musical tastes, Nattier has shown her holding a musical score in her hands. In addition, she inherited the instrument shown in Nattier's painting, which was made by the famous Dumont.

Indulgent and tender, Marie-Catherine-Pauline admired her father enormously and this led her later to write a short biography of the painter. Cochin read this text at the general assembly of the Académie on 7 February 1767.<sup>4</sup> In addition, she seems to have assisted in the creation of some of her father's portraits by painting accessories or the landscape in the background.

Charlotte-Claudine Nattier (Madame Brochier)

At the top on the left we see the portrait of Charlotte-Claudine Nattier future Madame Brochier. Born in 1730, she married the lawyer and diplomat François-Philippe Brochier in 1754. This portrait should be connected to one painted by Nattier in 1758.<sup>5</sup>

Madeleine-Sophie - Mme Challe

The portrait of the youngest sister, Madeleine-Sophie, future Madame Challe is at the bottom left of our group. Born in 1734, she married the painter Michel-Ange Challe and died in 1814.

Jean-Frédéric-Marc Nattier

At the bottom right we see the portrait of the artist's son, Jean-Frédéric-Marc Nattier who was born on 12 April 1734. The young man was the source of great hope in painting. But, after his father sent him to Rome to perfect his artistic education, he drowned in the Tiber in June 1754.

Provenance

This group of six drawings probably comes from the collection of the Nattiers' youngest daughter, Madeleine-Sophie Challe. In her will, she mentioned “(..) a little gold and black frame enclosing under glass six heads of the family drawn by my father (...), a large frame holding under glass eight heads of the family and friends.”<sup>6</sup> It is highly likely that our group corresponds to the first reference in the inventory of Madeleine-Sophie Challe.<sup>7</sup> These drawings were then in the collection of the Comte Jacques de Bryas. At the sale of this collection, they were bought by Henri Haro a picture dealer and expert at auctions. They then belonged to Monsieur P.[ion] Decourcelle, before entering the collection of Dr. Théodore Tuffier (1857-1929), at the latest in 1909. A pioneer and specialist in pulmonary studies, he operated on Georges Clemenceau and Maréchal Maunoury. A town councillor at Louveciennes and then mayor there, his neighbour was Maréchal Joffre.
